purchase in Paris where it is cheaper and better than any where else. You say nothing in your letter of Jackson's great discovery. I hope he will succeed in fully establishing his claim. If so he will undoubtedly receive high honours abroad. He should however eschew all patents at home. I am entirely of Dr Thaer's opinion with regard to scientific men dealing in patents. You are not at present indebted to me. I have some pamphlets of Ericsson's for you but the sending of the books cost me nothing at all. As yet no word from Rouge. I must close my letter now in haste – Love to all – Yours ever Wolcott
