purchase in Paris where it is cheaper and better than any where else. You say nothing in your letter of Jackson's great discovery. I hope he will succeed in fully establishing his claim. If so he will undoubtedly receive high honours abroad. He should however eschew all [illegible] at home. I am entirely of [illegible] opinion with regard to scientific men dealing in patents. You are not at present indebted to me. I have some pamphlets of Wisconsin for you but the sending of the books cost me nothing at all. As yet no word from Rouge. I must close my letter now in haste - Love to all - Yours ever Wolcott

P.S. Put your any of the Boston mutual admiration Societies.
