INTRODUCTORY.

To the descendants of Solomon Hakes and his wife Anna (Billings) Hakes:—It was after much hesitation that I finally decided to undertake the making of a limited genealogical record of the "Hakes" family, and I confess that nothing but the persistance of my friend, George B. Kulp, Esq., author of "Families of the Wyoming Valley," ever induced me to make the attempt. Mr. Kulp had been for years engaged in sketching the biographies of the members of the Luzerne County bench and bar, and I can now understand the difficulties of his task, in trying to show how and from whom the bench and bar descended. In my own case, as in most of the others, he was furnished with scant reliable data. That left a large margin for what is called "knowledge and belief," especially the "belief." I had one undoubted fact to begin with. The Congregational Church Record of Stonington, Conn., shows that "Solomon Hakes and Anna Billings, of Stonington, were united in marriage at Stonington, by the Rev. James Noyes, on the sixteenth day of January, A. D. 1718." My attention had also been directed to the Records of Windsor, Conn., by Royal Hinsman's "Record of the Names of Early Settlers," and by "Savage's Genealogical Tables" to the fact, that one, "John Hakes," settled at Windsor, Conn., in 1640, was married to Elizabeth ——, and resided there until 1659 or 1660, and had born to him there ten children, recorded in each instance H-a-k-e-s. The name being so very rare in this country, made it almost a necessary inference, that the said "John Hakes" was in some way the ancestor, or related to the Solomon Hakes who married at Stonington, and from whom all of the name of Hakes that I have been able to find in the United States are descended. I have thoroughly searched the Records of Windsor, and therein find in every instance except one, the name spelled H-a-k-e-s. In one instance it is H-a-y-k-e-s. John Hakes' name dropped from the record there in the year 1659, after selling most of his real estate. In 1662 or 1663 the record showed that Elizabeth, of Hadley, Mass., widow of John Hakes, deceased, sold and conveyed the remainder of his real estate in Windsor, Conn. I then went to Hadley, Hampshire Co., Mass., and found the record of an agreement between parties of Hartford County, Conn., dated 1659, growing out of disagreements connected with the church, by which the signers agreed to remove from Hartford County and settle at Hadley, Mass., before April 1660. Among the signers to this agreement, was John H-a-w-k-s. The Records and also the History of Hadley, show that the John Hakes and his wife and ten children who are on the Records of Windsor for nearly twenty years as H-a-k-e-s, were the identical persons, who moved from Windsor, Conn., in 1659, or early part of 1660, and that from the time they arrived in Hadley to this day, they have been put upon the Public Records, and in fact have been known, and their descendants also, by the name of H-a-w-k-s or H-a-w-k-e-s. After the removal of the family to Hadley, the name was generally spelled H-a-w-k-s, but after John's death in the summer of 1662, the Record of the Probate Court (now at Northampton) spelled the name H-a-w-k-e-s. In the History of Hadley, by Sylvester Judd, there are genealogical tables made by Lucius Ballwood, of all the early settlers of Hadley. Therein is the family of John Hawks who came from Windsor, Conn., giving the names of his children, their ages and marriages. I would here express my obligations to George Sheldon, Esq., of Deerfield, Mass., for his kindness and assistance, and in giving me the benefit of his masterly knowledge and experience of the history of his vicinity. That the descendants of Solomon Hakes of Stonington, are not descended from the said John Hakes, Hawks, or Hawkes, of Windsor and Hadley, is absolutely certain. Without here giving the reasons (which are too lengthy), I do not hesitate to say that John Hawks or Hawkes was known by one of these latter names or indifferently by both before he settled in Windsor, Conn. Besides the name Hakes belonging to Solomon and his descendants, which has for two hundred years entirely escaped corruption or variation, there is one other place where it appears in this country, to wit:

"Thomas Hakes died at James City, Virginia, between 1 April, 1622 and 16 February, 1623." Vide "Hutton Emigrants." For this memorandum I am indebted to Hon. Steuben Jenkins, and also for same memorandum to Rev. H. E. Hayden, Wilkes-Barré.—"Colonial records of Virginia," February 16, 1623. What an investigation of this might possibly lead to, I will leave some enthusiast for genealogical mining honors, to determine. I have been several times thrown off my track in my searches, by the possessive "s" attached to the German name "Hake." Also by another German name "Haker." There is also an English name Hake, but I have not discovered that it is in any way connected with the name Hakes.

The name "Hakes" in the United States, in so far as it has been possible to ascertain, originates or commences with Solomon Hakes, whose first appearance is in Westerly Rhode Island, in April, 1709. The Record of the Town Meeting held in that month shows that Solomon Hakes and some others were propounded to be made freemen, and at the next meeting Solomon was admitted a freeman and was allotted 100 acres of the vacant land the same as the other freemen. (Westerly Records). In November, 1709, Richard Chapman, of Stonington Conn., deeded to Solomon Hakes, of Westerly, a tract of land lying in what is now known as North Stonington. There is also a deed of land in Stonington made by Chapman also in 1710, and another in 1711 to Solomon Hakes, of Stonington. This indicates that between November, 1709, and Feb'y 1, 1710, Solomon Hakes moved from Westerly to Stonington. Another fact to establish this is a memorandum in the Stonington Records, "that the town meeting of Stonington in January, 1710, prescribed an ear mark for the stock of Solomon Hakes." From these facts it is reasonable to assume that in 1709 Solomon Hakes was not less than 21 years old, so that he was born not later than 1688, and was a man of liberal means for that period.

The questions, where did Solomon Hakes hail from on his arrival at Westerly? or who was his father? remains unanswered. As I do not find the name Hakes previous to this, I feel reasonably warranted in the opinion that he had recently arrived in the country.

I have thoroughly consulted the "Ancient Records of Stonington and Westerly." The indexes are very imperfect and often misleading. Many matters are not indexed and others wrongly indexed. The records at Westerly are very certainly, not original, as inspection will amply prove. Solomon Hakes is not indexed in the records there. The whole body of the old records must be searched.

Some of the records shown at Stonington may be original, but only a fraction of the matters that were properly recordable are to be found. As a single instance take the record of "Richard Hakes' family." The record credits him with two children, yet he had born there to him thirteen children.

The ancient burying grounds in the vicinity have been thoroughly searched and their records have been used to fix dates and relationships. I must here acknowledge my obligations to Hon. Richard Wheeler, of Stonington, for much valuable information as to the early history of the Hakes families. Persons of the same name now living, who were born in the earlier years of the present century, as well as four who were born previous to 1800, have been seen and consulted as to their knowledge of the early history of the families. Since Solomon Hakes settled in Stonington in 1709, to this day, some of the name have continued to reside there, keeping alive the early legends of the family, although quite oblivious as to what became of those who had removed. Lastly, all the old family Bible records have been searched, one reaching back as far as 1750.

From all the aforenamed sources, and the more recent family records, the results are obtained which form the basis of the following genealogical tables. After a very diligent attempt to adjust conflicting dates, it is quite probable that errors remain undiscovered. Nor is it pretended that all of the names have been found. There most certainly are several families who have not been obtained.

There are many blanks that I think might have been filled. The records are such as have been furnished. The time has arrived when I have promised to close my labors in this investigation, and publish the results.

I have only made my tables in the paternal line, as to carry those out in the female line would be the work of years. Many thanks to those who have been prompt to furnish me with what information they possessed.

To those who ponder as to a motive to make a record of this kind (quite too long neglected), I trust the receipt of a copy, free of expense, postage paid, will be a consoling answer.

Until within the last few days I have been unable to say anything definite as to the ancestry of Miss Anna Billings, who married Solomon Hakes.

I have just received a letter from the Hon. Charles Billings, of Billingsbridge, Ontario, Canada, who has made the genealogical tables of the Billings family, who says: "Anna Billings was born at Stonington, Conneticut, October 7th, 1681. Her mother's maiden name was Anna Comstock, and her father's name was Ebenezer Billings." Ebenezer Billings was the second child of William Billings, who came from England about 1640, married Mary ——, and settled at Stonington. The English ancestors reach back to A. D. 1420. Anna Billings-Hakes was the eldest child of Ebenezer and Anna Comstock-Billings.

One word more. In looking over the following tables and making your first acquaintance with some hundreds of relations, by blood, from a common ancestor, may it inspire a right hearty and generous effort for a more immediate acquaintance at a general gathering of the families—a union of hearts and hands in the near future.

I am induced to publish now what has been obtained with much labor, and subject to many difficulties, in order to certainly preserve many matters that might become irretrievably lost. It is possible but not very probable that I may undertake to ascertain the ancestry of Solomon Hakes whom we are now obliged to call the "first generation."

INTRODUCTION TO THE FOLLOWING GENEALOGICAL TABLES, SHOWING THEIR SOURCES.

THE CHILDREN OF (1)

1 gen 1 SOLOMON HAKES,[1] and Anna (Billings) Hakes.

2 gen 2 I George Hakes, b. at Stonington, Conn., 1719, ? Lived and died there; date unknown; farmer, m. Joanna ? or Hannah Jones May 15, 1739. (Stonington Record).

2 gen 3 II Mary Hakes, b. at Stonington, 1721, ? m. Ebenezer Darling, of Rhode Island, February 25, 1745; married by Thomas Steere, Justice of the Peace. (From the Old Smithfield Records, R. I.)

2 gen 4 III Jonathan Hakes, b. at Stonington, Conn., 1724, ? occ. farmer; Lived and died at Stonington; d. 1778; m. Hannah F. Brown, daughter of Jonathan Brown, of Westerly, Rhode Island, November 23, 1752; married at Westerly by B. Smith, Justice. (Recorded in Town Records, Westerly, January 11th, 1753, by Silas Greenman, Town Clerk).

GEORGE HAKES,[2] son of Solomon[1] and Hannah or Joanna. ?

Digitized by Google

3 gen 5 I Richard Hakes, b. at Stonington, Conn., April. 8th, 1741, was a soldier in the Revolutionary war; occ. farmer. He accumulated quite a fortune, and had intended after the war to invest largely in land in Central New York. But his Continental money or script became worthless, and so he remained in Stonington until he accumulated a sufficient sum of money to remove to Pitcher, Chenango County, New York, about the year 1800, where he purchased a large amount of land, upon which he settled with his large family, and where he died in 1815. He married Mary Babcock at Stonington, Conn., August 11, 1763, and, as will be seen further on, had thirteen children.

3 gen 6 II Solomon Hakes, b. January 20, 1743; d. October 27, 1773, and his stone monument is at North Stonington.

3 gen 7 III Hannah Hakes, b. February 4, 1745. No further record obtained.

3 gen 8 IV Olive Hakes, b. December 12, 1849. No further record.

3 gen 9 V George S. Hakes, b. January 27th, 1751. Left Stonington, and in 1770 to 1780 was settled in Berkshire County, Mass., but in what town cannot now be ascertained. Most, if not all, his seven children were born there. He removed from Berkshire to Herkimer County, New York, in 1793, and died probably about 1826 at Salsibury, Herkimer County. He married Zurvia Church, a descendant of Captain Church, in 1774, but at what place cannot now be ascertained. Occ. farmer.

Digitized by Google

3 gen. 10 VI James Hakes, b. March 25, 1752, at Stonington, and moved when a young man to Western Massachusetts, and from there into Central New York, where he probably died; date unknown. He married Martha Adams, May 15, 1774; probably in Berkshire County, Mass. His children and descendants will be found in the last table of this pamphlet.

The Hakes's thus have for a common ancestor SOLOMON HAKES. Next the two sons of Solomon, to wit, George and Jonathan, brothers. But as the living descendants are in fact the direct posterity of either Jonathan, or of the sons of his brother George, to wit, Richard, George S. and James, it will be more convenient and more easily understood by the various families if we separate the descriptive tables into four parts. Therefore we will take up first the descendants of Jonathan, second the descendants of Richard, third the descendants of George S., and lastly the descendants of James.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE DESCENDANTS OF (4)

JONATHAN HAKES,[2] son of Solomon,[1] and Hannah F.

3 gen. 11 I Caleb Hakes, b. at Stonington, Conn., 1753; m. Sybil ——; occ. farmer and miller; moved to Petersburg, Rensselaer County, New York, 1780; d. March 27, 1839. (Tombstone Record.)

3 gen. 12 II George Hakes, b. at Stonington, Conn., 1758; m., first, Content Main, September 30, 1779, at Stonington; second, Lucy Crandall, at Petersburg, New York, 1803. Occ. farmer; d. 1825 ?.

3 gen. 13 III Lucretia Hakes, b. at Stonington, 1760 ? m. Walter Werden, of Stonington.

Digitized by Google

3 gen 14 IV Jesse Hakes, b. at Stonington, Conn., 1762 ? moved to Petersburg 1780; m. about 1788 Emily Brown ?; was a farmer and a soldier in war of 1812, and died in the army. His descendants will be found further on.

3 gen 15 V Jonathan Hakes, Jr., b. at Stonington, Conn., 1765 ?. No further record.

3 gen 16 VI Jabez Hakes, b. at Stonington, Conn., 1768 ?. No further record found of him.

3 gen 17 VII Nathan Hakes, b. at Stonington, Conn., 1770 ?. Moved to Petersburg, New York, 1780; m. Polly Wedon, and finally moved to Delphi or DeRuyter, New York, and died there. Date not ascertained.

3 gen 18 VIII Weeden Hakes, b. at Stonington, Conn., July 29, 1771; moved to Petersburg, Rensselaer County, N. Y., 1780; m. Sybil Smith, 1792. Occ. farmer; d. July 6, 1845. (Monument Record.)

The above brothers moved from Stonington to Petersburg in 1780 with ox teams.

BY TELEGRAPH.

O. F. HAKES APPOINTED SUPERIOR JUDGE.

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 14, 1886.—2:30 P. M.

Governor Stoneman, having received petitions from Mono County, signed by leading citizens, and supplemented by other recommendations, he at once ordered that a commission issue to O. F. Hakes as Superior Judge of Mono County, vice R. M. Briggs, deceased.

[We move a committee of three be appointed to inform Lawyer O. F. Hakes that he is now Judge O. F. Hakes.—Ed. Miner.]

Judge Hakes assumed the duties of his position December 17, 1886, and as soon as Court was declared opened he made, substantially, the following brief remarks:

"In assuming the duties of the office of Superior Judge of Mono County, made vacant by the death of the late lamented Judge Briggs, it is with a full consciousness on my part of the responsibilities assumed as well as the obligations imposed. I fully appreciate that a public office is a public trust, and that the appointment or election to it is a delegation of the trust to the person appointed or elected for the time being. Offices are not established for the benefit of the office-holder, but for the benefit of the people. In performing the duties of the office I shall rely upon the faithful and cordial support of the members of the Bar, county officers, and all well disposed citizens generally, not only in the administration of the law, but in the promotion and carrying out of all needed systems of economy and reform. It will be my constant aim to do my whole duty without fear or favor, and I trust that my labors will be directed by sound intelligence, and with strict probity and impartiality to all, and for the best interests of all concerned."

From a Worcester paper we copy the following obituary notice of Mr. Henry B. Hakes:

OBITUARY.

"Mr. H. B. Hakes, whose death was recorded Saturday, came to this city from Preston City thirty-five years ago. During much of this time he has been either foreman or superintendent of the works of the Ames Plow Company. It was in the employ of this company that he made an extended tour through Europe, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, and back to California, the trip occupying thirteen months. Mr. Hakes has been a member of the Baptist Church forty-three years, and of the First Baptist Church in this city thirty-three years. The many friends who attended the funeral services in the church yesterday afternoon bore witness to the esteem in which he was held. The number of gray-headed men present was something remarkable. Among the many who have called to express sympathy with the family are a goodly number who have been in his employ in the shops. Mr. Hakes was too diffident to seek or desire the honors of public office, but served the city very acceptably as Alderman in 1865, under Mayor Ball, and in 1866, under Mayor Blake. He was earnest and conscientious in all he attempted to do. Mr. Hakes was one of the gifted mechanics who have so largely made Worcester what it is. His eldest daughter, Mrs. Stephens, resides in Mt. Pleasant, near Pittsburg, Pa., where the youngest daughter, Miss Sarah R. Hakes, has been teaching Latin for a year past in the institute of which Mr. Stephens is principal. The second daughter is the wife of the Rev. Mr. James, of Philadelphia. The widow and one daughter only are left in this city. The remains will be taken to Norwich for interment on the 9:30 train to-day."

Was for several years Supervisor of Harpersfield; took an active part in building up schools and establishing useful libraries, and was of much value to the young men in their debating societies. He was the leading spirit in favor of good roads, and in the construction of a turnpike through Delaware and Schoharie Counties, about 1836. In 1841 he was commissioned by Governor W. H. Seward Judge of the Courts of Delaware County. It was during his term that the anti-rent insurrection broke out, making much business for the Courts. In the war of 1812 he was drafted into the military service, and was stationed at New York. In those days bounties for soldiers were unknown. Each man must provide his own weapon and accoutrements. He was honorably discharged, and started home without a shilling. About 1870 he was awarded a pension of $100 a year, every dollar of which he would give away as soon as recieved; d. at Harpersfield, Delaware County, N. Y., July 14, 1873.

LYMAN HAKES,[4] son of George, S., Jr.,[3] of George, Sr.,[2] of Solomon,[1] and Nancy.

5 gen 479 I Lyman Hakes, Jr., b. at Harpersfield, Delaware County, N. Y., March 23, 1816; m. 1st, Elizabeth J. Baldwin at Wilkes-Barré, Pa., 1851 ?; 2d, Margaret D. Cowley, of Pittsburg, Pa., 1869 ?. Attorney at Law at Wilkes-Barré, Pa., from 1840; d. December 8, 1873.

By permission of George B. Kulp, Esq., one of his older students, editor and publisher of the Luzerne Legal Register, his obituary and proceedings of the Luzerne Bar therein, are here inserted:—

Died, at his residence in this city, early Monday morning, December 8th, 1873, Lyman Hakes, Esq., after nearly three years of failing health. He had achieved a wide reputation as a lawyer. He was distinguished for his clear perception, fine logical powers, and remarkable legal instincts, and these gifts, sustained by extensive reading, placed him at the head of his profession as a criminal lawyer at the bar of Luzerne, and of many other counties to which his practice extended. He was a son of the late Hon. Lyman Hakes, at one time Judge of Delaware County, New York, where he was born March 23, 1816. Hon. Harlo Hakes, of Hornellsville, New York, and Hon. Harry Hakes, of this county, are his brothers. He came to Pennsylvania in 1837, and for some time taught school at Berwick, Columbia County. While thus engaged he commenced the study of law under the tuition of the late Hon. S. F. Headley. In 1839 he came to Wilkes-Barré, continued his legal studies under William Wurtz, Esq., and was admitted to the bar at the April term, in 1841, in a class with Hon. E. L. Dana and the late Horatio W. Nicholson, Esq. Very early in his career Mr. Hakes gave evidence of his power as a criminal lawyer, which afterwards distinguished him. He had to contend against able men and powerful orators, who did little to help the struggling young attorney; but opposition only developed the powers of his mind, and his strength of will overcame every obstacle, until he stood the peer of the brightest, if not, indeed, peerless at the Luzerne bar. He was not a brilliant orator, but he had a mathematical mind capable of condensing facts and presenting them to a jury in a most convincing manner. He excelled in clearness of statement, and was always powerful before a jury. In the earlier years of his practice Mr. Hakes was a close student, and was almost as successful in civil as in criminal cases, but in his later years his practice was principally criminal, and books were in a great measure neglected. But even up to the last he was no mean antagonist in any case. In the midst of a large practice at the bar he found time to keep up with the current scientific literature of the day, and was greatly interested in all scientific discoveries. He had almost a passion for machinery, and when riding on a railroad almost invariably took a position on the locomotive. In appreciation of this trait of his character the Lackawanna and Bloomsburg Railroad Company named one of their locomotives the "Lyman Hakes." Among the students of the deceased are to be found some of our most promising young lawyers. George W. Tutton, now deceased, C. D. Foster, Harry Hakes, C. E. Rice, Andrew Hunlock, G. L. Halsey, Esqs., and others received their legal instruction from Mr. Hakes. The intercourse between Mr. Hakes and the young gentlemen who studied under him, of which we can truthfully testify, was ever of the most agreeable kind. So likewise the indulgence he manifested towards the younger members of the bar. He was not envious of any other's success, but rather preferred giving aid to its further advancement.

While it is not possible in a notice such as this to comment on all that is worthy of remark; there is, nevertheless, a trait pertaining to legal ethics wherein this practitioner was always the most scrupulous. He stood steadfastly by his word. His fellow-attorney need not ask under his signature for the evidence of any agreement pertaining to any matter to come before court on trial. His word was sufficient. What he verbally agreed to do was with him a matter of professional pride to consummate.

In his private life, Mr. Hakes had many admirers, and this not without cause. He was a true and faithful friend; in the capacity of a neighbor, justly noted. There were few men more ready to serve, to aid, to counsel. His generosity was noble and exalted. Perhaps the highest meed of praise that man can bestow upon man is that due to charity. And all who knew Mr. Hakes freely accord to him the exercise of this Heaven-born virtue. The last dime in the purse was never refused to the cry of the needy. If he did not always give with discrimination, he gave liberally; and whatever were his faults, there are many whom he has befriended who will sincerely mourn his loss.

In the estimation of human character we are accustomed to place most confidence in the evidence of those most qualified, from closest intimacy, to judge. And it is in this case well worthy of notice that all nearest allied to this man in professional, social and domestic life, bear the same testimony to his many virtues, and most keenly feel the Providence which has summoned him from amongst us.

The writer of this knew Mr. Hakes well. As a student in his office, for a while a member of his family, by our intercourse with him, we learned not only to respect him, but to love him, and we here drop a tear to his memory.

"And the night dew that falls, though in silence it weeps, Shall brighten with verdure the grave where he sleeps."

BAR MEETING.

At a meeting of the members of the Bar of Luzerne County, held in the court-room, at Wilkes-Barré, on Tuesday, December 9th, A. D. 1873, A. R. Brundage, Esq., was chosen Chairman, and H. B. Payne, Esq., Secretary.

On motion, a committee of five, composed of C. E. Wright, Esq., Chairman; I. P. Hand, W. W. Ketcham, Oristus Collins, and H. M. Hoyt, Esqs., was appointed to report on resolutions at an adjourned meeting, to be held on Thursday, December 11th.

Pursuant to adjournment, the members of the Bar were called to order by A. R. Brundage, Esq., in the court-room, on Thursday, December 11th, 1873, immediately after the morning session of the Argument Court.

Hon. C. E. Wright, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, reported as follows:

As members of the legal profession, we assemble to-day in compliance with that custom which ever and anon cites us to appear and hold converse over the dead. As our number year after year increases, more and more frequently are we summoned thus together. And now another of our fraternity has migrated to "that undiscovered country, from whose bourne no traveler returns." He is gone, but not unexpectedly; we were prepared for the happening of an event which confirmed malady too certainly foretold. That we are gathered here to express our common sympathy, and give utterance of the same to the public ear, it is satisfactory, indeed, that so much can be justly said in praise of the departed. We shall but echo the common sentiment of our county in offering tribute of our admiration of his abilities, and appreciation of his manly traits.

Lyman Hakes was truly a man of marked characteristics. In mind, he was much above the average; in social habits, frank and confiding; in domestic life, genial and kind; in his nature charitable; in many of his tastes, refined and cultivated. The profession of his choice, the achievements of science, the grand triumphs of mechanical powers, as also the production of the sculptor's chisel and the painter's brush, found in him both a patron and worshiper. But his work is accomplished; and he is called off from further labor and from further triumphs. Many the battles he bravely fought; many the victories gained. A mightier foeman than met at the bar has at length struck down the muscular frame and chilled the current of his blood. Where he lies to-day, covered by the laurels he won, we, his associates and fellows of the same bar, must in turn follow him.

In evidence of our esteem for him as a man, a neighbor, a friend, and a fellow-practitioner, we submit the following:

Resolved, That we hereby give expression to our deep regret and sorrow, caused by the Providence that has again broken our ranks and claimed another victim.

Resolved, That our bar has lost a member of distinction; the profession, an advocate whose genius enhanced its claim to renown; the community, a man many years connected with its growing interests; and many, a faithful friend. At the same time the suffering poor are deprived of one who always responded to their appeals for the exercise of charity.

Resolved, That our condolence are hereby extended to the bereaved relatives, and that a copy of these proceedings be furnished them. Also, that they be published in the papers of the county.

Resolved, That we wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

On motion of Hon. Stanley Woodward, the resolutions were adopted.

Pending this motion, C. E. Lathrop, Esq., said:

My acquaintance with Mr. Hakes has not been so intimate of late years, but I knew him well in his early history. He came to Wilkes-Barré in the spring of 1839, and entered his name as a student in the office of my brother-in-law, the late William Wurtz, Esq., in whose family I was then a resident. The deceased was then about twenty-three years of age Though but a mere lad, and in attendance upon school, I devoted my leisure hours to the study of law in the same office, and was thus a quasi fellow-student of his. He was a close student, and early exhibited those faculties which in after years made him so famous as a lawyer I have often heard him remark while a student that he meant to be no ordinary lawyer, but to aim for a high position at the bar, which, in that day, was no easy matter. How well he fulfilled that prediction this day's proceedings abundantly testify. The deceased was peculiarly genial and happy in his disposition, and was always pleasant and agreeable to younger persons. Having been thus associated with the deceased in early life, I have watched his career with great interest and pride. Though not without his faults, the deceased had a mind of great power and ability, and developed many qualities which, taken all in all, marked him as a man upon whose like we shall seldom look again.

Hon. C. E. Wright, said:

MR. CHAIRMAN:—I desire to add a word in justification of my own position in connection with this man, who will no more be seen in our midst. It is a pleasure for me to do so. When I returned to my native county in 1853, I found Mr. Hakes, to me then a stranger, occupying a place at the bar. By some I was rather counseled to avoid him, as there seemed to be a current of public sentiment running against him. I can't deny but I was placed under influence by this, and had but little intercourse with him. However, a few years overcame the wrongly formed opinion, and I was happy to change it. I admit it was erroneous. I came to look through the outward seeming of the man, and estimate him by his demonstrations of mind and sentiments of heart. Therefore it was that I admired where before I had suspected.

In my professional intercourse with Mr. Hakes I had always the satisfaction of feeling that I was dealing with a man of honor. His word I took without hesitation, and it was never broken. And I now sum up the leading features of his character, as I came to learn, with much satisfaction of heart. In my view he was a man of kindly emotion; of true honor in connection with his fellow-practitioners; a man of truth; a man of charity. And having said this, what weight, in the minds of just and intelligent men, should the foibles and unpolished phases of his character claim? It is idle even to regard them.

I am happy, Mr. Chairman, to refer to that other and better aspect of character, which in this case, as in all others, it is most pleasant to contemplate. I have seen this man weep under appeals made to the heart. I saw him, a few years ago, on the camp-ground, showing the most indubitable signs of a heart drawn to the considerations of things pertaining to the state beyond this life. I heard it stated by Father Hunt, at his funeral, that on different occasions he had bowed the knee with him in prayer to God. So, in passing upon him now, it becomes us as men to cast aside the minor traits which in his manner may at the time have excited objection, and to regard the more noble and generous features, which he possessed in a large degree.

Hon. W. W. Ketcham, said:

MR. CHAIRMAN:—I should have to travel a great distance to find an audience to whom I could tell anything new of Lyman Hakes. He was for more than thirty years an active practitioner at this bar, and very much at the bars of surrounding counties and in the Supreme Court, and so known to most of the lawyers of the state, and to a very large body of people who attended and were interested in the courts. Besides all this his genial, social qualities, his love of the masses, and the happiness he derived from mingling with the common people, made his name and presence familiar all over a large extent of the country.

Having when but a boy cast himself upon his own innate resources, and without fortune, education or influence to aid him, he found his first footing and the first sympathy with the poor, and his road lay from the bottom on up through all grades of men to the position where his last work was done.

The poor and the common people had been his friends in the hour of his need, and had generously seconded his ambition and brought him from obscurity to distinction; and he never forgot them or separated from them. As they had been his friend, so they had no better friend than Lyman Hakes. Had he been avaricious, he would have died a very rich man. His professional earnings, well invested, would have made him rich. But he was generous to a fault; charitable to prodigality. The poor had their full share of his gatherings.

He was frank, truthful, and in all things an honorable and reliable lawyer; and if so there, so everywhere. He was able. His intellect was much above the average, and combined a marvelous variety of qualities and faculties; a strange association of power and beauty; a clear and unfailing perception; a vigorous, keen logic; a rare breadth of view and great power of endurance; and courage that delighted in the bold desperate conflict where mind, will, passion, character, ambition, all there is in the heart, soul, mind and body, contests and decides the issues of fortune and of life and death; and along with these, an enthusiasm for machinery and mechanical science, and still yet a passion for the beautiful both in nature and art.

He was a thorough and profound student of principle, and a master of elementary law; and his fine legal instincts enabled him with little effort to approximate all that he needed of the stare decisis. Without the advantages of the schools, his pride of energy and taste had given him command of good, expressive English; and very few men have excelled him in ingenuity, or clearness or force of statement, either in argument to the court or to the jury.

To sum up in brief: Whether making demonstrations from some intricate and involved legal proposition before the highest tribunal of the state; or struggling for the life of a prisoner in the Oyer and Terminer; or unlocking the mysteries of Fearn on Remainders, and threading the gossamer specula ions of the scintilla-juris; or exulting over the triump of genius in the locomotive; or strolling, wrapt in the dream of the picture gallery; or participating in the rustic amusements of the fair-ground, he was a remarkable man; and for his ability and honor as a lawyer, and for his genius and liberal tastes and benevolence as a man, he will be long remembered by the bar and by the people.

S. S. Winchester, Esq., said he was acquainted with Mr. Hakes very intimately; went to school to him, and had an opportunity to know the kindness of his heart. Mr. W. spoke feelingly of the melancholy close of the life of the deceased, and referred to another prominent member of the bar, Mr. G. B. Nicholson, who fought for years against disease. In the case of the latter gentleman, when the bodily powers had nearly all failed, the mind retained all its vigor; but how different the case of our brother just deceased.

The last day of his life Mr. Hakes sent for the speaker, who placed him upon a chair and spent some time with him. He was attended in his illness by a devoted, faithful wife, who not only watched by his bedside but guided his feeble steps through the streets. Such love and devotion called forth our deepest sympathy and most profound respect.

The deceased was truly a great man in his profession. As a criminal lawyer he had no superior in Northern Pennsylvania. His energy in behalf of his clients was untiring. He seemed to make his clients case his own, and spared no labor to accomplish his end. As a lawyer, his example is a rich legacy to all the younger members of the bar.—Mr. Hakes's early struggles and ultimate triumph were dwelt upon at considerable length by the speaker.

By permission of George B. Kulp, Esq., before mentioned, author of "Families of Wyoming Valley," the following memorandum from the Luzerne Legal Register is inserted: Vide frontispiece.

"HARRY HAKES, Wilkes-Barré, Pa., by George B. Kulp, (a Member of the Luzerne County [Pa.] Bar):—A man being successful as a lawyer and a doctor must needs be a mentally strong man. A man who has achieved a more than ordinary fair standing in both professions is the subject of our present sketch. The Hakes family is of English extraction and of the earliest Puritan stock. The Hon. Harry Hakes was born June 10, 1825, at Harpersfield, Delaware County, N. Y. His father, Lyman Hakes, Sr., first saw light as far back as 1788, in Berkshire County, Mass., which county furnished a large part of the early settlers of this valley. The grandfather of Harry Hakes was George S. Hakes, who married Zurvia Church, of the family of Captain Church, about 1775, in Massachusetts. Lyman Hakes, Sr., moved to Harpersfield, N. Y., where he died in 1873. He married Nancy Dayton, of Watertown, Litchfield County, Conn., September 23, 1813. Her father, Lyman Dayton, was a soldier in the Revolutionary war. The mother of Mr. Dayton was Abiah, daughter of Stephen and Rebecca Matthews, of Watertown, Conn. Stephen Matthews was the son of Thomas Matthews, also of Watertown. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and was at the surrender of Fort Ticonderoga. Thomas Matthews was the son of William Matthews, who emigrated from Wales, England, to Connecticut in 1671. He was born in Watertown in 1699, and died in 1798, aged ninety-nine years. At the age of forty Thomas Matthews was appointed a Magistrate of Watertown, and held the office for forty years, being appointed yearly, and at the age of eighty declined further appointment. Mr. Hakes served in the war of 1812, and was a Judge of the county in which he lived. Mrs. Hannah Carr, nee Hakes, sister of Lyman Hakes, Sr., was the grandmother of Hon. C. E. Rice, President Judge of Luzerne County. His family consisted of eight children, four sons and four daughters. Of the sons Harry was the youngest, and Lyman, Jr., for many years a resident and leading member of the bar of this county, the oldest. Homer, another of the sons, died in 1854. Another son of this breeder of big men, Hon. Harlo Hakes, resides at Hornellsville, N. Y. Two of the sisters are still living, one the mother of Lyman H. Bennett, a member of the Luzerne bar, and residing in Wilkes-Barré.

The boyhood of Harry Hakes combined the usual experience of farmers' sons—work upon tke farm during the summer, and attendance upon the district school during the brief school term in winter. He had even at that age a habit of study and taste for general reading which made him, as nearly as possible for a boy, a proficient in all the branches taught, and gave him a fairly good English education.

Leaving the following of the plow, he entered the Castleton Medical College, in Vermont, from which institution he graduated in 1846, an M. D., with all the honor that title conveys, and opened an office at Davenport Center, N. Y., which soon became the center of attraction for a large population needing medical help, and in which he remained for three years with gratifying financial success to himself, and more than equally gratifying good to his patients.

In June, 1849, when he was but twenty-four years of age, he married Maria E. Dana, eldest daughter of Anderson Dana, Jr., of Wilkes-Barré, who was the uncle of ex-Judge Edmund L. Dana, of this city. She died the December following, unfortunately, and the bereaved husband devoted the year 1850 to attendance and faithful and effective work in the schools and hospitals of New York City. Then he removed to the, at that time rapidly growing village of Nanticoke, in this county, where he continued the practice of his profession for three years. In 1854 he visited the old country, and spent another year of study in the medical institutions of London and Paris. Returning he married Harriet L. Lape, the daughter of Adam and Elizabeth Lape, both natives of this county, August 29, 1855. He then resumed his practice as a man of medicine, and, interspersing it with the care and culture of his fine farm in the vicinity of Nanticoke, did good work for himself and country until the spring of 1857. He has no children living, having lost two in their infancy.

Dr. Hakes had succeeded in the cure of the physical ailments of man, but, probably by hereditary transmission, he had an aptitude for the law. His father, as has before been stated, was a law-giver of no little distinction. His brother was a lawyer of acknowedged repute practicing at our own bar. Another brother is one of the leading lawyers in the Empire State; has been District Attorney of his county, member of the Legislature, and Register in Bankruptcy. Harry began, urged by these influences, the study of law, in the office of his elder brother Lyman, in 1857, passed the usual examination, and was admitted to practice January 25, 1860.

In 1864 he was elected a member of the Legislature on the Democratic ticket, representing Luzerne County. During that term, and the succeeding one to which he was re-elected, he secured an appropriation of $2,500 each year for the Home for Friendless Children. He served on the Judiciary Local, Judiciary General, Ways and Means, Corporations, Federal Relations, and Estates and Escheats Committees. He drafted the bill to prevent persons from carrying concealed deadly weapons, the bill for the extension of the Lehigh Valley Railroad from Wilkes-Barré to Waverly, N. Y., and the bill for the collection of debts against townships, all of which passed.

Although he still keeps up his relations with his brethren of the "healing art," and takes an active part in business and discussions as a member of the Luzerne County Medical Society, his attention and time are chiefly given to the law, with an occasional digression, at the proper season, with the rod and creel along some mountain stream, or an excursion with dog and gun into the haunts of the quail, the pheasant, and other denizens of the woods.

The Dr. is a life-long, earnest Democrat, and is always ready, both in public and private, to give a reason for the faith that is in him. He is a member of the Pennsylvania State Medical Society, the American Medical Association, and is often a delegate from the Luzerne County Medical Society. He is frequently called upon to make speeches on medical, agricultural, and scientific subjects. He is not a member of any Christian church, but a Methodist in religious belief.

Dr. Hakes is a genial friend, a kind neighbor, and a public spirited citizen. Over six feet in height, he unites with a large frame a large heart, and a grasp, a vigor, and an independence of mind which renders empiricism and the small art and details of professional life distasteful, but especially qualifies him to subject every question, whether in medicine, law, or theology, to the rigid test of principle, and to that measure and amount of proof of which it is reasonably susceptible."

CONCLUSION.

In looking over the foregoing tables it is quite manifest that there must be many of our name whose whereabouts I have been unable to find in the six months I have devoted to this work. If, however, each person who receives this record will make some effort to find out who and where the others are, and will make out memoranda of names, ages, births, marriages, residence and occupation, in the same manner I have adopted in these tables, and forward the same to me, I will undertake to arrange it in order, and publish the same as an appendix. With a little exertion on the part of every one, we can, within the next year, get every one of the name.

I have heretofore suggested a general meeting of the families. No better opportunity can occur than the present to say that it is decided that we shall meet at the International Hotel, at Niagara Falls, on the first Wednesday in August, 1887. Without further notice or invitation it is hoped that every family and every person will be there on that day. Ordinary excuses will not be recognized. Remember the day. With salutations, a " Merry Christmas " and a " Happy New Year," I am truly and abundantly your cousin, in all the several and various degrees,

HARRY HAKES.

DECEMBER 25, 1886.
