circle at the marriage. Your presence with your Laura, would dispel every cloud, and give joy to a parents breast which I can realize, but not express.

I do not expect to be here when the marriage takes place, but if I can know you will be here, it will more than gratify all, and though absent myself, my heart will be glad. I am

Very affectly

Henry Channing