and tearing off, as his excitement increased, one articles after another of his clothing until he stood perfectly naked - at length he exclaimed "I feel a wind coming which will make me strong to put her to sleep" and becoming apparently exhausted or weak from his exercize, grasped the pole which supported the roof, at the same time stooping so as to bring his back into a horizontal position. His knees shook under him and his voice subsided into a low monotonous song. The girl was then brought in and laid upon him, with her back to his, her head lying over his shoulder and kept in her position by a couple of squaws who held her legs. She had on only a shift. Meantime the people present kept on singing and pounding upon boards, and the man continuing dancing and singing. In a short time, perhaps ten or fifteen minutes, the girl went to sleep. She was then laid on the floor, and the Doctor kneeling by her commenced a low wailing cry. The Indians stated that no one but he could awaken her. as the slumber passed off she commenced crying, then singing louder and clearer and finally got up and danced with all her strength.

Mr W. H. Gray assures me that before any knowledge of mesmerism had reached Oregon, he had seen a third person made a medium by an Indian Doctor at Clatsop. The patient was an old woman, afflicted with cancer in the breast. The doctor influenced a young man so ~~that~~ he had perfect control
