I suspect that Laura & your sisters are somewhat too apt to play the Doctor. George will rarely require physick of any kind - warm clothing, plenty of food & exercise are all that he requires - of Eliza's temperament I cannot judge so well, but I presume the same course is suitable for her.

When is Jim to have learned his dispositions & habits - his exile at West Point has done him much good: - he has acquired a good mathematical head & understands Geometry well & has formed a robust constitution & temperate habits, duly to will serve him; but does not seem to be violently addicted to literary pursuits: - perhaps during the winter, he may visit you, if you remain at Sunswick -

I expect to supply you with a firkin of good Butter & will send to you, with the Cows you mention: - we can spare Beef; but will it not be better to send a Bullock, than salted Beef? - I do not know that I shall see Mr Burnes, but I know that he will attend to any request you make.

The business of a Farmer is unproductive of much profit at present, but is better here than in any other part of the U.S. or perhaps of the world: great care is requisite to avoid getting in debt: we can obtain abundance of good food, Clothing & Cyder, and must be contented with what we produce. Crops will have some sweet business on hand. The trust evidence has however been printed out to them: the Southern States will be the most unprofitable: yet they will suffer most from any mistaken policy & necessity will force them to adopt right measures.
