to have the thing clearly understood. Havre September 24th 1846

You will not of course say anything to Ward which would lead to a disagreement with Flottinger. I fell short about 50 francs which Mr Prime at once lent me. I have paid every cent I owed in France and you need be under no further anxieties about my money matters.

Love to all I hope to see you by the 24 October —

Dear George

Yours ever Wolcott.

I arrived here last night expecting to sail this morning but find that the ship cannot clear till [illegible] and so sit down to notify you of my arrival trusting that this will reach you by the French Steamer of the 30th of this month. I reached Paris from Geneva ~~on~~ & about the end of the first week in September and found a letter from you and another from Mother dated 14th August. I made my arrangement as soon as possible to sail [illegible] I saw that you expected me sooner than I could possibly arrive. The second letter of credit did not however reach Paris till the 16th of the month and this detained me some time. In regard to this letter I have not drawn any money upon it and have directed Flottinger to notify Mr Ward that this is the case. If therefore you feel any want of confidence in Prime Ward & Co's stability under existing circumstances ~~you had~~ and if you have already paid the money over to them you had better draw it again at once. Now for the explanation of all ~~this~~. Before this reaches you will have heard of the immense failures in England. These have created a tremendous panic in France and bankers ~~there~~ here will not
