accomplished I should suppose. Will you enclose the enclosed note, & send them with the books in case of their arrival. Perhaps the priest of the reformed congregation in Berlin could forward them - perhaps you could write to the two gentlemen & their address - If I did not believe that you would forward them at once & do what is right by yourself & do nothing more than you have time & to accomplish I should not trouble you in this manner - I believe now you understand what I want - I am very anxious to hear of your position & impressions - I have been doing little & am rather falling back than advancing - I know that a life of idleness & unstable exertions will be inconsistant with my happiness & respectability & yet I see no course before me on which I shall be likely to enter - Nil desperandum however - Sea - Wal, Tinsh I could tell you how much I long to see you - & how much satisfaction I shall receive from your first letter - I have filled this epistle with details as most interesting to you where there is so little room - Every thing here is moving on much as you left it, though where there is so much life you will see great changes when you return - (I see that Gerecke is pastor of Schneidemuhl) - Will you write me your address & the means of sending to you - I send by steamer prepaying the letter to the Continent as far as possible - We are having a fine summer without drought - Dr Page at Washington is hard at work - He has a magnetic electric machine which I hope will have motive power - His new reaction - I am having one built on the principle of the galvanometer with a revolving electro magnet - It moves with a good deal of force - Write me the scientific news & whatever strikes you - What is the true meaning of Rouge reform - Is it a second great schism of the Calvinistic - Is it a reform towards Liberal Christianity or Calvinism? - I would willingly do something to assist the former - Very truly yrs W.G. — I fear the enclosed are unpaid - You had best say nothing of my communication —
