There seems a strong probability that Shoalwater bay once formed part of the Estuary of the Columbia river, the rocky promontory of Cape Disappointment being an island in its midst, or at least that an actual communication existed between them. ~~The alteration is probably [illegible] in part to the deposit by the river of the matter~~ at this place.

0518