English government. If they allow us, upon an instance of contempt and to pass unnoticed, they must lose immensely in moral force. Then may be as well be an end of all treaties at once if such flagrant violations of them are to pass on occasion with impunity. I hope to live to see the utter destruction of the Austrian Empire. or it must come before another half century. Lamartine is gradually undermining the whole foundation of the rotten old fabric and its minister Metternich. So much for Continental politics. I hope soon to hear good news from you about our own. If you do not object I should like to have George Shaw the first half of this letter to Mr Farrer to whom I intend writing soon. I must finish this now and begin a
