the efforts to escape when hooked, frequently leaping clear out of water, and when out shaking his head, and trying to shake out the hooks. They are caught from twenty pounds to one hundred and upwards in weight. are of a beautiful silver colour shaped something like a shad with the mouth on the top of the head. I had a shiny hammer head line one of Cunard's boat 150 yards long with a couple of quantities hooks No 6/0 rigged in copper wire rigged about two feet apart with swivels about four inches long only and a bottle at the end as a float to keep the hooks and bait as near the surface as possible where these fish generally feed. A sinker anchors the bottle, to keep the length of the line from sinking the bait. The line was carried out in a boat, the hooks being baited with live mullet. and dropped about 100 yards from shore, where many of these fish were seen feeding, then long back boat shaped fish swung about the surface. I soon had a tremendous bite but as it was dark before I could get one line in I might as well made one of his tremendous lunges, and parted the swivel. I had several other bites, but did not succeed in taking any. The next time I intend to attend my tackle, for I am determined to catch one of these fellows before I give it up. For sometimes the excitement of fishing, after taking such immense quantities of fish, and when the fun is reduced to hard fishing, it is about as hard work as I know of. We always have a fine Chowder however and a good time.

What was a fish-net
readily understand
to any such little fa
it is pretty evident that
ten. She made one a keeping, which I shall I go into the manner
a skirt of muslin a
in the arrangement
probably take the
announced by either
friends (knowing
as well as pleasure
after coming
or wherever else
have to sustain the
the meantime you get shocked me the result that Boston girl has
have had made a ch
the camp to go permanent once I do not see th
any business by