time. It is all there is about it, only I did not understand the Northern aspect of the matter. Excuse me, but I believe Abe have come to was decidedly a sympathiser, and went in on the side he did because his friends were there. If he regulated his actions by the bible, he also studied, as a species of commentary or 'higher law', the platform. So I also come to think that some people, whom I have always known to be vastly cunning, instead of turning out patriots will leave the future to suspect they were only splendid demagogues.

You who can see that there is nothing in my exposition of the inscriptions ought to be able to judge of the evidence whether there is anything proof that will reach Davis as a party to the murder of the President, or is the whole a delusion conjured by the steaming brains of Secretary Stanton? If the crime should be fixed upon him, it will leave nothing more to be desired. - Where are you coming?

Truly yrs BJ