"The Piedmaury, Blackfeet and Blood Indians are a distinct people; speak [illegible] & their words, and I have reason to think, are travelling towards Westward, as well as the others just mentiond; nor have I heard of any Indians with whose language that which they speak has any affinity. They are the people who deal in horses and take them upon the war parties towards Mexico.

"The Sarsees, who are but few in number appear from their language to come on the contrary from the North westward and are of the same people as the Rocky Mountain Indians described in my second journal, who are a tribe of the Chipewyans; and as to the Knistenaux, there is no question of their having been, and continuing to be, invaders of this country from the East-

"All the country to the South and East of this, within the line of propriety, has been discribd, it aboundg with Lakes &c. Its inhabitants are the Knistenaux Indians, who are called by the [illegible] at York, Home guards."

"The Missinipi is the name which it received from the Knistenaux, when they first came to this country, and either destroyed or drove back the natives, whom they held in great contempt."
