some very pleasant letters from her. I dropped in at her hotel last evening & saw almost all the family except her Pleasants. This is at first print with her daughter has Mendell. the wife of an old friend of mine. The eldest boy resembles her little somewhat but is tall & slender, the third, only 16, was [illegible] I like his hair up. the resemblance is general & disappears in the dusk I took him for his father & his pa's great amusement. I met Col Emory in the street before he left & join his regiment. He looks very much careworn & feels awfully.

I shall write Alfred today, so good bye

Yours George
